

PRECARIOUS WORK

By
Erin Hogan

Premier Wynne, Premier Wynne, please hear our cry!

Right now, thousands of workers in a daily struggle to get by.

Elevated number of vulnerable workers hovers near forty per cent, while

Changing workplace employment makes it ever harder to pay the rent.

Aboriginal people, women and youth, are but a few,

Recent migrants, single parents and disabled struggle too,

In hopes of a job with benefits, sick days and scheduling practices that are fair.

Overtime pay, training and full-time employment, all seem increasingly rare.

Unions, like OPSEU, continue to fight for what's right,

Supporting a workforce and creating a future more bright.

Workers, for now, continue to toil multiple jobs for low pay.

Ontario citizens deserve more than precarious work in this day.

Rights for workers shouldn't be for just the few,

Kathleen Wynne, the time for legislation protection is overdue.